War & Peace:

Young Friends, Conscientious Objection and Coming to Clearness

“Why are there so many military people in my school?”

“It strikes me humans can’t kill unless they get convinced the other isn’t human.” “Would you be willing to die for your country? What about killing for your country?”

These are a few of the deep questions raised by the Young Friends at a recent planning session held to prepare for a presentation they will give on the 18th. As a community, are we doing enough in our meetings to support our teens as they find their way? Do we know what they need from us?

In an interactive, intergenerational program we will learn from the Young Friends how we can actively support them on their journey.
